Purpose/objective of the change

Mixture of PT 2,5-QUATTRO housings available on all markets in order to secure production capacity.

Detailed description of the change

To address increasing market demand and ensure uninterrupted production capacity, PT 2.5-QUATTRO housings will be sourced from two approved housing variants: one incorporating a PE slot and one without a PE slot. Both versions are already established products used extensively across global markets and are fully equivalent with respect to electrical performance, mechanical properties, functionality, and quality standards.
Historically, these housing variants were designated for different regions and managed separately within the supply chain. To enhance manufacturing flexibility and strengthen supply continuity, both variants will now be used interchangeably. This approach will enable more efficient utilization of available production capacity while supporting the reliable supply of products in response to growing customer demand. Please note that different housings can be use in one product order, however only one housing will appear in a box (no mixture will occur within a box).
The introduction of this sourcing strategy will not affect product performance, operational reliability, installation procedures, or dimensional characteristics. As both housing variants are fully compatible and equivalent from the end-user perspective, existing product specifications and application requirements remain unchanged.
